

Software Tester Web Applications (m/f)

We are looking for a highly skilled software tester to work for one of our very distinguished customers. He/she will test a Web application that is known and used by millions of people all around the globe.

The ideal candidate would be working as an embedded tester in a world class agile development team. He will possess the necessary skills to write test specifications and test plans, set-up test environments, execute test cases, analyze results, and write test and bug reports. His system administration and computer skills allow him to work in a very complex IT environment. He will be naturally accepted as a test expert by the other team members and the developers.

Specifically, the candidate will possess some or all of the following:

- experience in manual testing and test design
- a proven track record as exploratory tester
- at least 3 years of working experience in an agile development environment
- good understanding of Web applications and Web technologies
- strong system administration, computer and/or development skills
- excellent written and verbal communication skills (English a must, German a plus)

We offer:

- challenging projects you will tell your grandchildren about
- a dynamic team environment with great colleagues
- exposure to cutting edge Web technology
- work place in central Zurich with all possible amenities

Greenliff is an independent Engineering and Service company focused on software testing and the development of high quality software. We are a hands-on crowd and we offer the opportunity to put theory into practice. Our consultants bring the needed expertise in both quality standards and software engineering best practices. Our Engineers work directly with the customers to develop solutions uniquely tailored to the customer's needs – typically involving automated tests and test beds.

If you possess these skills and have a valid Swiss work permit or are an EU citizen, you should talk to us. We look forward to receiving your application at jobs@greenliff.com.

We can only consider direct applications (no agencies).
